Wider Walkouts Are Expected

Thousands Join Strike in Britain

By Alvin Shuster LONDON, July 24 (NYT) .-- Industrial chaos spread across Britain today as thousands of workers walked off their jobs in support of five imprisoned

All major ports and all of London's newspapers were closed. Many miners joined in unofficial strikes, as did automobile parts workers, truck drivers and aircraft builders.

As the crisis deepened, Prime Minister Edward Heath met urgently this morning with senior ministers and, tonight, with 'eaders of the Trades Union Congress, which represents most unions The union officials asked Mr. Heath to intervene to free the Jalled dockers and to suspend provisions of the nation's new labor law, which is bitterly opposed by unions.

After two hours, the meeting at 10 Downing Street ended in deadlock. Mr. Heath insisted that the government could not interfere with the court decision jailing the dockers.

Victor Feather, general secretary of the TUO said be had told Mr. Heath that "we want the men out of jail" and that strikes catastrophic to the economy of the country" would continue as long as they were imprisoned. He also refused to join in talks scheduled tomorrow with Mr. Heath and business leaders on a voluntary program to fight in-

Although millions of workers remained on their jobs today, the outlook appeared grim in view of calls by many unions for widespread support of the dockers.

Local union officials urged a general strike, but the leaders of the Trades Union Congress rejected the idea this afternoon. They said, bowever, that they might decide on a one-day token walkout of all workers as a sign of solidarity. In general, the unrest is expected to widen unless the dockers are released. Airport workers, for example, scheduled a meeting for later in the week and threatened to shut London's airports.

The controversy moved across Channel to France, where

Russia's 'Excessive Caution' As Ally Prompted Sadat Move

He Rules Out Complete Rift With Moscow

By Henry Tanner

CAIRO, July 24 (NYT) -- President Anwar Sadat today blamed the Soviet Union's "excessive caution" as an ally for his decision to demand the departure of Russian military personnel.

In a four-hour speech before the Central Committee of the Arab Socialist Union. Egypt's only political party, Mr. Sadat declar-ed that he would not permit a complete rift to develop between him and the Russians.

He rejected the suggestion, which he said had been made by some that he turn to the United States to compensate for his difficulties with Moscow. And he categorically denied that there had been any contact with Washington before the announcement of his decision last Tuesday. The burden of the speech was that the Arabs now stand alone. The tone was one of disappointment and hitterness but not

On strictly bilateral matters. trade questions undoubtedly will take up a major part of the talks, since no other issue has caused to much friction in recent years, Mr. Tanaka, who served as minister of international trade and industry in Mr. Sato's cablnet, has stressed the need to resolve trade problems, caused largely by Japan's huge surplus with the United States.

Cabinet Report Contradicts U.S. Stand on Asia Dope Flow In U.S. East

By Seymour M. Hersh WASHINGTON, July 24 (NYT). A cabinet-level report has conchided that, contrary to the Nixon administration's public optimism, "there is no prospect" of stemming the smuggling of narcotics by air and sea in Southeast Asia "under any conditions that can realistically be

"This is so," the report, dated Feb. 21, 1972, said, "because the governments in the region ara unable and, in some cases, un-willing to do those things that would have to be done by them if a truly effective effort were

The report, prepared by of-ficials of the Central Intelligence Agency, the State Department and the Defense Department, neted that "the most basic problem; and the one that unfortunately appears least likely of any early solution, is the corruption, collusion and indifference at some places in some governments, particularly Theiland and South

The report sharply contradicted the official administration posi-tion, and government intelligence sources say its conclusions are still valid today. In May, Sec-retary of State William P. "Some Real Progress"

Similarly, Nelson G. Gross, the State Department's coordinator for international narcotics mat-ters, told Congress in June that "the governments of Thailand, Laos and Vietnam have already joined us in the fight and, while we have a long way to go, we feel that during the past year some real progress has been achieved."

All officials concerned acknowlthat the U.S. agencies, under prodding from President hava begun an intensive effort to stem the international narcotics traffic. But critics contend that the effort is far less effective today than administration officials say it is.

The cabinet-level report, made available to The New York Times, buttressed many of the charges made by two critics, particularly about the pivotal importance of Thailand to the international drug smuggiers. Thailand is also a major staging area for the U.S.

In a report on the world heroin problem last year, one of the two critics, Rep. Robert Steele, R., Conn., wrote that "from the American viewpoint, Thailand is as important to the control of the illegal international traffic in narcotics as Turkey. While all of the oplum produced in Southeast Asia is not grown in Thai-land, most of it is smuggled through that country."

Rep. Steele's report, to a House committee, said that the inability of the United States to have a lew notorious smugglers deported from Thailand had led some intelligence officials to conclude that the men were paying Thai officials for protection.

The other critic author Alfred W. McCoy, . Yale graduate student, said in testimony before congressional committees last

New York City Has Record 57 Killings in 7 Days

NEW YORK, July 24 (NYT) .-Fifty-seven bomicides-a record total-were committed in the seven-day period that ended at midnight Thursday, the office of the chief medical examiner re-

"That certainly is the greatest number we've ever had in one week." said Dr. Milton Helpern, who joined the office in 1931 and has beld the chief's title since 1954. The figure for the same seven days in 1971 was only 25 and the average weekly homicide toll last year was 31.

Crime analysts at police beadquarters said the record figure was probably due largely to the bot weather, to chance, and to the fact that welfare checks were sent out during the seven days, providing money to be robbed and money to buy alcohol. Stabbings accounted for 26 of the 57 homicides, an unusually high proportion. Five were fatal assaults and 24 were shootings. One person was set on fire and an 18-month-old baby was thrown out of a window. At least 10 of the victims were heroin addicts, several of them being victims in multiple killings. Two girl addicts, aged 15 and 17, were shot by a man in a bar Three male addicts were taken to an abandoned apartment on West 90th Street, tied up and shot.

NASA Hears Bids On $3.5-Billion Space Contract

WASHINGTON, July 24 (WP).

The U.S. space agency called a meeting today with four aerospace contractors in what bolls down to their last chance to win the most coveted space contract of the next 10 years.

The contractors are Grumman Aerospace Corp., North American Rockwell, Inc., Lockheed Missiles and Space Co., Inc., and McDonnell Douglas Corp., each of which was given 90 minutes to explain why it should be awarded the contract to build the returnable and reusable space shuttle

At stake in today's talks is a contract worth as much as $2.5 billion, the largest single contract put up for bid by NASA since the Apollo spacecraft contracts 10 years ago. The shuttle coutract also means as many a 160,000 jobs spread out over six years, which to the winner means dominance of the space industry and to the losers, the possibil-ity of near extinction in a market that has been dwindling for the last six years.

The contract award is due later celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the establishment of a republic should be accompanied by the crisis air that surrounds the oustor of Soviet military peraonnel. Not only is there a renewed nationalist fervor, an added senso of inouster. That in Itself would have seemed a fitting emotion on the anniversary of what was essontially a nationalist uprising in 1952. Not only is the Egyptian Army deeply involved in the demi-crisis with the Soviet Union, as it was the begotter of the revolt out the cost in lives and material, the ditbat overthrew King Farouk. Above all, Egypt is shadowed. In 1972 as in 1952, by tho war with Israel.

There were many solid reasons for ridding Egypt of the lethargic constitutional monarchy over which King Farouk presided. But the bruised pride of the Egyptian Army after the first rounds of the war with Israel was the most inspirational factor in the coup that brought first General Mohammod Naguib and thon Colonel Gamal Abdel Nassor to rule tho land of the Pharaohs and the khedives. And, after two more rounds, in 1956 and 1967, the principal issue is still unresolved: the army's pride is still

To be sure, much has happened in Egypt in the past two decades that may seem only incidentally connected with the Israell conflict. Egypt has sevored its last tios with Britain; it has taken over the Suez Canal; it has built the Aswan dam; it has been a central element in the rise of Arab nationalism. Two efforts to create an Arab feder-

It is not inappropriate that Egypt's ation have been launched—one failed, the other is in process of formation. Egypt has become a force in the Mediterranean basin, much as it was in the days of Mehemet Ail, although far less than in the times of Ramses II. How much of this would have been accomplished without the focal point dependence in Egypt as the result of that of Arab-Israell rivalry and the effects of that rivairy upon the great powers may be disputed.

But what is more important now is how much might have been won for the Egyptian people and their Arab neighbors withvorsion of energy, entailed by the struggle in Palestine. The hard-won Suez Canal remains a useless ditch bocause of lt. Egypt considers the United States an onemy because America has aided Israel; it is arguing with the Soviet Union because it has not aided the Arabs sufficiently. The Arab nations are divided, very largely, because they do not agroe on the tactics of the continuing war that is not a war. And somewhere, very far down the list of priorities, are the feliahin of Egypt and the Bedouin of Arabia, the ancient tillers of the soil and herders of goats and camels, the people who hope and pay.

It will not be easy to reach a secure and equitable peace in the Middle East. The issuos aro complex; each side is convinced of its own righteousness and neither is aitogother right, when viewed from outside tho ring. But unless some serious effort is made to reach an accommodation, how many anniversaries of Egyptian Independence wil be celebrated undor the guns?

in the world will have large nuclear reactors in operation for the production of electric power and thus a significant potontial for making atomic weapons. Apart from today's five nuclear weapons nations—the United States, Russia, Britain, France and China-some 27 other countries will be producing plutonium as a by-product of electric power generation, enough of it to make at least 900 Hiroshima bombs a year.

The growing cost and mounting shortage of other forms of energy—the American electric power industry alone is planning to expand from 26 to 300 power reactors 1990 has brought the advent of the long delayed nuclear power era. With it has come the long feared danger that possession of nuclear weapons will spread around the globe.

It was this danger that the United States. the Soviet Union and Britain sought to head off in the 1963 nonproliferation treaty '(NPT). But four years later, although 102 non-nuclear weapons countries have signed. only 71 have ratified the treaty. Only two of the eight so-called "threshold" or "nearnuclear" countries have ratified the NPT, Canada and Sweden. The NPT signatories that have not yet ratified the treaty inciuds four threshold countries-Wost Germany, Japan, Italy and Switzerland-and such other important nations as Egypt, Turkey and Australia. Nonsignatories include two near-nuclear countries, India and Israel as well as Pakistan, Brazil, Argentina, South Africa and Spain.

It is becoming clear that the treaty as it

By 1976 about one-fourth of the countries now stands is unlikely to gain the adherence of many of those countries unless the United States and the Soviet Union can agroe on a number of collateral measures designed to attract them. This is the conclusion that has emerged from an unusual project of parallel studies by the United Nations Associations of the United States and the Soviet Union. The reports of two UNA policy panels, just published in both countries, point the way to the measures Action by the United States and the Soviet Union to make more credible their security assurances to nations that take the pledge against becoming nuclear powers are at tho top of the list of such collateral measures. For Japan, India, Pakistan, Israel and Egypt, security is the central concern.

But most important, perhaps, is the tone in world relationships and arms control set by the superpowers. On the heels of the historic SALT 1 agreements, a move to extend tho 1963 nuclear test-ban treaty to underground tests could make a major contribution to nonproliforation. The UNA-U.S.A. report points out that virtually all the countries now hesitant about adhering to the NPT signed and ratified the limited test-ban treaty and are on record as favoring an underground test ban.

HANOL-One of the most outspoken—and unpleasant—men I have met here in Henoi is Hong Chuong, the editor of Hoc Tap, the theoretical journal of the North Vietnamese Communist party. In hopes of gauging the effect of President Nixon's recent visits to Moscow and Peking, I asked him how he compared communism in Vietnam with communism in Russia and China.

revolution, Lenin replaced Kerensky and the czar. He was a representative of the workers, and they represented the bourgoisie and the nobles. But they were all Russians

"In the Chinese revolution, Mao Tse-tung replaced Chiang Kalshek. Mao represented the peasants and Chiang represented the feudal warfords. But they were both Chinese.

"In our revolution, Ho Chi Minh replaced the Japanese Fascists and the French colomalists. Ho was Vietnamese and they were foreigners."

That little homily expresses one of the truly important features of the Communist regime bere in North Vlemam. It represents form of national communism. It is self-consciously different from the regimes in Peking and in Moscow. If anything there is a sense here of being somehow superior, one up on the others in purity and breadth of revolutionary strugg!e.

As Truong Chinh, the president of the North Vietnamese Assembly and leading member of the Poutburo, put it in a speech published here last Pebruary that is considered highly significant: To support the Vietnamese and the other Indochinese peoples' patriotic war against the U.S. has become the key question in the world peoples' struggle against

U.S. imperialism. Out of Focus

The North Vietnamese leaders know very well that President Nixon's visits to Peking and to Moscow cast a shadow over their claim to be what one North Vietnamese called the "focus and frontier of the world revolution-ary struggle." Their press and radio have not even formally acknowledged that the visits have taken place.

One editor here, Le Khac Vien of the publication Vietnamese Studies, acknowledged to me that Hanol had lost some political suppert from Moscow and Peking But in the same breath he said that "what counts is material support." That, he contended, was still continuing, "Wo don't ask the Eussians and the Chinese to be 100 percent Vietnamese," he said. "We are happy when they are 50 percent Vietnamese."

Both Soviet and Chinese diplomats here in Hanol have told me that aid to North Vietnam from thoir countries is continuing. So many vehicles and heavy wespons have already been sent in that Hanoi resembles a kind of parking lot for trucks, artillery and anti-aircraft, chiefly from Russia,

Soviet technicians are on hand in considerable numbers, and while some are leaving, I saw more arrivo on the weekly Aeroflot flight from Moscow which arrived here on July 15. I was told by North Vietnamese officials—but could not verify it in-dependently—that Eussia had ident Nixon's diplomatic triumphs in Moscow and Peking. Despite the actions of the two major Communist countries, the North Vietnamese continue to believe that they are fighting on the frontier of revolution. The slackening of political support from Russia and China only seems to intensify their own disposition to fight, which has a heavily na-tionalistic element. The more so as they are still able to screw out up the battlo. My own guess is that the North Vietnamese are wrong. I believs that thanks to President Nixon's diplomatic advances toward China and Russia this country is no longer on the front line of revolutionary struggle-if indeed a thing which has to be so bembastically expressed exists at all.

But it is not surprising that Hanoi fails to recognize this fact, and keeps on fighting as though nothing had changed. Mothinks I am a prophet newinspired. Actually, methinks nothing of the sort, for it required no psychic powers to make the above prophecy, only the ability to lean out of a window. Tho battle-noise of wblch could be beard from the window-was over the government's Industrial Relations Act, the only serious attempt in modern times to bring the trades unions and their activities within the ambit of the general law.

From the start, the unions. especially the militants, had fought the act at every point, oven refusing to claim under its provisions the very considerable enefits it brought them. Gradually, it became clear that, sooner or later, a major trial of strength between the government and the unions, or more precisely between the law and tho unions, or more exactly still between the unions and the supremacy of Parliament, was inevitable, and it was at the point at which that inevitability became apparent that I made my prophecy.

Now the explosion has occurred: We await evidence, over the next days and weeks, as to whether the explosion is going to bring the house down or to clear the air and enable a new era in labor relations to come about.

The explosion itself has occurred on the docks, for very many years among the most troubled of all our industries where labor relations are concerned. The dispute er an a hal been going on since long before the government's Industrial Relations Act, and which spreads far more widely than this particular industry: It is, in effect, the question of modernization and mechanization. For years now, the dockers have resisted the introduction of container-loaded goods, which cut down the work they have to do in loading and unloading ships. The present crisis came to a head when a number of firms in Liverpool, whose containers were being "blacked" by the dockers there (the dockors were refusing to load them because the containers came from outside the docks and were alleged to be handled hy non-union labor), brought actions against the dockers, under the ANTIAGO.-Despite Chile's not materialized. Allends blames debt recegotiation three menths ago, which the government described at the time as satisfactory, President Salvador Allende recently predicted a $250million deficit in the balance of payments this year.

Speaking on the day of national dignity, a year after na-tionalization of the American copper interests, Allende offered this arithmetic to a miner au-

Export earnings, 74 percent of them from copper, will be $1.2 billion. Imports, mostly of food and capital goods, will cost $1.25 blilion. Debt payments will be $200 million (they would have been $610 million but for tho renegotiation). "How are we going to get out that situation?" he asked Without really answering the question, he exhorted the miners to produce more. The deficit probably will be financed by foreign borrowing. In normal times it would not be an operous amount for the nation of 95 mulion. But these are not normal times for Chile. Foreign exchange reserves that were at $343 million when Allende was elected in 1970 are now thought to be nominal.

A principal cause for the diffleuity, as Allende pointed outis the fall in the price of copper. It is selling at 48 cents per pound. down from 60 cents and more in recent years of high demand.

Critics' View

But Allende also charply critisized the workers at the main Chuquicamata mine, formerly owned by Anaconda, saying they had cost the nation $14 million in lost production during strikes. Production at the other main mines has run close to normal, but increases in output foreseen

Since the debt rollback was only for 14 months, instead of the three years requested by Chile, the Paris agreement included a provision for meeting again in December to discuss extension.

It appears that Chile will be in dire need of extending the agreement, and the United States is expected to raise again the question of copper compensation With only five months remaining until December, the U.S.-Chilean follow-up agreement to the Paris accord may not be signed at all.

Nevertheless, U.S. debts rene-gotisted there are not being paid. Chile did pay $5 million due at the end of June on a loan

Poet Writes Soviet Leader To Protest KGB Exile Order From China

By Robert G. Kaiser

MOSCOW, July 24 (WP).—Yosif Brodsky, 32, a Leningrad poet with a major reputation—although his work has never been published here—left the Soviet Union under pressure from the KCB last month. The day he left, June 4, he sent a letter to Leonid I. Brezhney, the leader of the Soviet Communist party. That letter has now become available in Moscow and is printed below. Mr. Brodsky will be a writer in residence at the University of Michigan this year. His friends say that he was told that be had leave the country, and he was not optimistic about getting permission to return

Mr. Brodsky had expressed mterest in going abroad in the past. But he never said that he wanted to become a permanent exile, his friends report.

Prison Camp Sentence

In 1984, Mr. Brodsky was tried as a "parasite" and served 18 months in a labor camp. He has never been regarded as a political poet, however. His works have circulated widely among Moscow and Leningrad intellectuals, and they seem to be extremely popular. Anna Ahkmatova, one of the great Russian poets of this century, praised his work extravagantly before her

Here is the text of Mr. Brodsky's letter: Dear Leonid Hyich, Leaving Russia against my will which you may know something about—I dare apply to you with a request which I feel I have a right to make, because of my clear understanding that everything I have done during 15 years of literary work serves and will serve the glory of Russian cul-ture, and nothing else.

I want to ask you to give me an opportunity to preserve my presence, my existence in the Russian literary world, at least a translator, which is what I have been until now. [Mr. Brodsky translated some English poetry that has been published in the Soviet Union, but not under his name. I dare think that the work I have done so far has been good work, and that I could be useful in this field in the future. After all, this was the practice 100 years ago.

[The reference is not clear.] I belong to Russian culture; I feel a part of it, its component, and no change of place can in-fluence the final consequence of this. A language is a much more ancient and inevitable thing than a state. I belong to the Russian language. As to the state, from my point of view, the measure of a writer's patriotism is not oaths from a high platform, but how he writes in the language of the people among whom he lives.

I feel bitter as I leave Russia. I was born, was raised and have lived here, and I owe everything I have in the world to Russia. Everything bad that I have suffered has been more than compensated by the good, and I have never felt I have been hurt by my homeland. I don't feel it now.

Although I am losing my So-viet citizenship, I do not cease to be a Russian poet I believe that I will return; poets always return, in flesh or on paper. I want to believe that both are possible. Mankind has left behind

Italy Postpones TVA for 6 Months

ROME, July 24 (AP).-The Italian Senate Saturday approved a bill passed by the Chamber of Deputies last week to postpone imposition of the valued-added tax until Jan. 1, 1973.

The Senate also agreed to put off until Jan. I, 1974, a drastically revised income tax that increases the levy on higher incomes and is designed to plug loopholes that allowed evasion.

The valued-added tax, a levy on wholesale and retail transactions, was to have brought Italy into line with other members of the European Economic Community. It was to have gone into effect on July 1. Other community members have agreed reluctantly to the delay, although they have criticized Italy for already being two and half years late with the tax.

Bohan Playing It Safe at Dior

By Eugenia Sheppard

PARIS July 24.—What would you do if you were Marc Bohan faced with designing the famous Dior collection in a world that is constantly predicting the end of all made-to-order fashion? Probably just what he did today. play safe with a beautiful, ladylike, if not the most riveting, collection in history.

For the opening, the house of Dior was decorated with all the old luxury. Eight-fcot trees of flowers grew from pots at the hottom of the marble stairway and 6-foot bouquets decorated the mantelpiece in the bi salon. Almost as many press and photographers as ever were there. Celehrity row included Lauren Bacall, on vacation and wearing a yellov: twin sweater set and brown pants.

It will be the girl and not the man in the gray flannel suit this fall, if Marc Bohan has his way, but don't think it's the old-time gray sult that he wants to bring back. Bohan's is a double-face fabric that reverse, to navy blue and be uses the dark side for the

Sunken Treasure Ship off Norway

AALESUND, Norway, July 24 (AP).-A Norwegian and two Swedish frogmen claim to bave found almost 3,000 gold and silver coins on the seabed off the Norwegian coast, near Aalesund

Eystein Krohn Dale, of Aalesund, Bengt-Olof Gustafsson, of Gothenburg, and Stefan Person, of Grayarne, turned over 75 kilos of coins to local police. They believe that the coins must have been in the Dutch ship Acherdam which went down off Runde Island in 1725.

According to local history the Acherdam was "fully loaded with valuables including gold coins" when it sank. Previous attempts to locate the sbip have been unsuccessful. The trio refuse to tell anyone but the police where they found the coins. Further investigations will be made later, Mr. Dale sald.

suits used to. His models wear There are dozens in the collection made of ever soft, fragile fabric you can think of, from creps to cigaline, to chiffon spattered with gold dots.

Most of the dresses are made wit_ big, transparent sleeves and many have double skirts, with two flounces or two rows of pleats hemline. In the '50s they used to call them tunic dresses, and all the tall girls loved them.

Like most designers these days Bohan is mad for jackets. He shows them cut short, medium or hip-length. For daytime, the jackets, in bright, primary monotones, cover Bohan's daytime dresses, which you can sum up very simply as classics.

They have the uniquitous pleated skirt, and many of them are made of small, speckled prints on woolen voile. Don't misunderstand me. They're adorable, but just at this point you can't help wishing that some slightly gaudy female like Sadie Thompson would come loping in.

Bohan has designed three smashing raincoats. They come in shades like yellow, grass green and salmon orange. All of them have fur collars of fox or raccoon that are meant to be worn turned That's the way Bohan likes all his collars, even on the sporty little jackets.

Bohan likes another old favorite, the costume; that means a slightly fitted coat over a slightly

The house of 1,500 appeared evenly divided, with few remaining neutral.

The outburst Friday night, which lasted 20 minutes, and its recriminatory and much longer aftermath Saturday, showed that to many connected with the annual festival the issue of Adolf Hitler's and the Nazi movement's adulation of Wagner remains painfully sensitive.

Hitler proclaimed Wagner, who died 50 years before the dictator came to power, es the incarnation of music and poetry of his own mystical German nationalism. He conferred many tokens of esteem on the Wagner family and the Bayreuth Festival, and was a close friend of Winlfred Wagner, the composer's daughterin-law, and benefactor to her sons, Wieland and Wolfgang.

Mrs. Wagner, 75, has remained out of public sight because of her affection for Hitler. Wieland and Wolfgang resumed the festival, which has been run since ts inception by the Wagner family, after the German defeat in World War IL Since Wieland's death, Wolfgung has been in charge.

Significance of Outflow Put in Perspective By H. Erich Heinemann NEW YORK, July 24 (NYT) .-

Redemptions:

An Analysis

For all of the mutual-fund industry's $60 billion in assets, and its 8.5 million individual shareholders, it is only a rookie in the big league of the capital markets. In their best year, 1969, mutual funds were able to capture about 5 percent of the total flow of cash into all savings and invest-

Indeed, the gross inflow of new deposits into the nation's savings and loan associations last month, about $8.8 billion, was an even $2 billion higher than the fund industry's biggest gross sales year.
It is important to keep these facts in mind in assessing the significance for the capital markets of the mutual funds' recent net outflow of capital—actually $623.6 million in the second quar-

According to Norman E. Mains, associate economist at the Invest-ment Company Institute, sales are currently running roughly 30 percent below where they ought to be in relation to the industry's long-term trend, while redemptions are 24 percent above their trend line. The result, by simple arithmetic-net redemptions.

Crash Not Likely The net redemptions are certainly not insignificant, especially in their impact on investor psy-chology, but neither do they seem likely to bring Wall Street turnbling down. There are clearly a large number of factors—either operating singly or in combination—to account for the relative unpopularity of mutual funds at present. Among these, industry experts clie the following: • The maturing of the industry, so that ar fund shareholders grow older, more and more take advantage of the liquidity that a fund provides and redeem their shares.

• The sales abuses that occurred during the era of the "go-go" funds in the late staties, when investors were explicitly or implicitly promised quick profits. Not only did the quick profits prove ephemeral, but in many funds they turned into losses. This year, with stock prices re-covered roughly to 1968 levels, these investors have followed the ancient principle of "getting even • The demoralization of the mutual-fund sales force that has occurred as a result of a long list of actual or pending government reforms, which, fund men believe, made or are likely to make the selling of fund shares much less profitable.

While the industry has only itself to blame for the sour taste that the "go-go" funds left behind. it is also important to recognize the impact of the government reforms.

In its 1970 amendments to the Investment Company Act. Con-gress for all practical purposes ended the "front-end-load" contractual plan, under which a salesman who convinced an investor to make regular time payments into a fund, could collect up to half of his sale, commissions for the entire payment period in the first year.

More recently, the Securities and Exchange Commission has begun to loosen somewhat its tight regulation of mutual-fund advertising. This, in turn, may have encouraged some funds to convert to no-load status, and drop their sales charges, and salesmen, entirely.

In addition, the SEC bas decreed an end to the reciprocal allocation of commissions on mu-tual-fund portfolio transactions to brokers who also retail fund shares-roughly in proportion to those retail sales. The regulation to implement this decree has not yet been published, but a loss of valuable commission revenue appears to be looming.

Uncertain Future These factors combined add up to a major set of uncertainties for the fund industry. In the meantime, mutual funds.

as a group appear to have more than adequate cash reserves to meet their redemptions, and fund men say that there is no evidence that moderate redemptions have any impact on investment per formance.

Asian Imports Urged TOKYO, July 24 (AP-DJ) .-- An influential business research institute said Japan should increase imports of farm products from Asian nations, particularly from China, to lessen its heavy de-

This overreliance poses a constant danger because the vital supplies may be stopped, depending on international developments, the center said.

French Industry Doubts Prospects

PARIS, July 24 (Reuters) .-French industrialists are generally unwilling to forecast outlook for the last months of 1972, but they expected a strong period of activity in July and a good start to the period after the holiday season, the Bank of France says in its latest economic survey. The survey, carried out in June, adds there is a reluctance on the part of industrialists to undertake fresh investmer expenditure owing partly to the uncertain international monetary situation and doubts as to whether the recent level of orders can be maintained The capital goods sector is not expected to show any major increase in activity during the remainder of 1972, but a recovery is hoped for in 1973. However, there is little sign of measures being taken to incre...e production capacity, the survey notes.

The outlook for intermediary goods production seems reasonably hopeful although it will depend to a large extent on future trends in the capital goods sector, the SULTEY ROOS. Consumer goods production is expected to be maintained at a reasonable level after the holidays, but the growth rate is unlikely to be as great as that achieved in the first half of 1972.

"It is difficult to reconcile his increased optimism about the present and his uncertainties about the future, but the national presidential campaign could well be exerting a strong influence."

WHAT DO YOU SAY AFTER YOU SAY IN By Eric Berne, M.D. Grove Press. 457 pp. 201

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

WHEN people say they have been helped by traditional psychotherapy, skeptical friends sometimes answer that the same results might have been achieved by talking to anyone with mere common sense. At first glance, Dr. Kric Berne's posthumous "What Do You Say After You Say Hello?" seems like a compromise between common sense and Freudian therapy.

For the difficult Freudian conceptual scheme—with its atten-dant arcane "dialect"—Dr. Berne substitutes something approximating a life style, which he calls a script, and his language is not scientific or recondite but colloquial and easily accessible. His method, called "transactional analysis," is gaining wide acceptance among therapists today.

Instead of accumulating the massive historical documentation the Freudian analyst needs to bring the patient to a psychic recognition of his predicament, the author shows the petienton the basis of fairly little and easily obtained evidence—what kind of script he is following and what sort of "games" or "rackets" he is employing in the proces In his opinion, this gives the patient the advantage of an almost instantaneous recognition of his neurotic maneuvering-a recognition that may be the first step in attempting to modify or resist the destructive script.

In this book, Dr. Berne has carried much further the themes of his best-selling "Games People Play." Apparently stung by charges that his last book was "not serious," a "popularization," he has gone to excessive lengths to see that this one does not suffer the same fate. As a result, the book is more than most readers can bite off and chew. It is heavily overdocumented and bewilderingly elaborate in its classification of scripts, games and rackets, and other mecha nisms of transactional analysis. There are so many cases of overlapping and competing drives that patients sometimes seem like impenetrable jungles of cross

Yet, in sentence after sentence, Dr. Berne bits on troths that strike us as far-reaching and useful. For example: "To say hello rightly is to see the other person, to be aware of him as phenomenon, to happen to him and to be ready for him to into playing a noncor happen to you." "Trash," he part His ultimate funct defines as all the things people. are doing to each other instead, his life script and act a of saying hello. He feels that in most cases we spend our lives deceiving not only the world, but ourseives as well. Even our gravestones cry out our striving, our efforts to persuade those who knew us that our "game" or

"racket" was our true self. He asks his patients questions like: "If your family were put on the stage, what sert of play would it be?" He explains the paradoxical continuance of dramatically unhappy marriages as a game called "It hurts to be wounded, but it feels so good to be healed." Describing the conditions of our early programming, he says a child is the tamest ther, he believes that children

Once again yesterday, the Mets unleashed the hitting attack that brings opposing pitchers running to the mound and it carried them to a 5-2 loss to the San Francisco

Not even Willie Mays could help yesterday as the Mets amassed all of four hits against Ron Bryant. Mays, who had driven in the winning runs in the previous two games he started, failed to get a hit in three times

The Mets produced one of their typical rallies in the fifth inning when they scored a run on a walk, Bryant's third error, a sacrifice, an intentional walk and Jim Fregosi's sacrifice fly. That gave them a 2-0 lead but Tom Seaver couldn't handle soch time since Aug. 11, 1963. The Mets haven't produced such a display of power in any game this month. In the 20 games they have played in July, eight of which they somehow won, the Mets have averaged two runs and 5.5 hits a game and have compiled a 172 team batting

Yancey 1st On His Putt In Playoff Defeats Unknown

In American Golf

By Lincoln A. Werden AKRON, Ohio, July 24 (NYT). -Bert Yancey, who says he is practicing more and playing better golf, rolled in a par putt to beat Tom Ulozas at the first extra bole in a sudden-death playoff in the American Golf Classic yes-

Ulozas, a 6-foot-5-inch twoyear tour pro from Edison, N.J., who caught Yancey, the 54-hole pacesetter, with a final-round 68 at the Firestone Country Club as his more experienced rival carded a 72 to cause the 72-hole deadlock at 276, four under par.

Ulozas, a former club pro, acted as babysitter while Yancey snared the par four at the home green to go into extra session. Ulozas held his 2-year-old son Bryant in his arms away from the green so he won't make any noise to disturb Bert," while Mrs. Ulozas and Ronnie, 4, had a greenside view. The Ulozases travel the tour in a motor home, which was parked nearby.

"I know the better man won." said Ulozas, 29, after receiving the $17,100 check, his share as runner-up, his largest ever, Yancey earned $30,000 of the $150,000 purse. "My turn will come." Last year, he carned $7,551 and this year he had won $9,124 until yes-

"I have to thank my wife who has been patient living in a 25foot motor home and also Orville Moody Iformer U.S. Open champion] who helped me with golf while I was in the Army in Korea," Ulozas said.

Yancey, ex-West Point golf captain, who last woo on the circuit in 1970 in the Bing Crosby Open at Pebble Beach, Calif., has earned more than $80,000 in each of the last three years but had been just over the $30,000 mark this season. "I don't think anyone practic-

The Show Must Go On

WASHINGTON,...The Republican convention planners are in a swivet. They have three nights of prime time on Aug. 21, 22 and 23 to fill, and not much to fill it with. At the moment there are no rules fights, no platform battles and no stop-Nixon movements. The GOP could have one of the best organized, well rm, rancorless conventions in modern political history, but who the hell wants to watch it on

Buchwald A close Republican friend, Hiram Staunchfield, who is head of "The Committee to Re-Elect the President Without Boring the People to Death," told me that his group was hard at work trying to make an exciting political convention out of a sow's

"It's going to be very tough this year to keep up the excitement," he said. "On the first night we plan to attack Mc-Govern and Eagleton. The second night will be devoted to attacking the media, and on the third night we'll put on Nixon, Pat Tricia and Julie. But I'm not sure that is enough. The American people will forgive anything but a dull television

"What shout the demonstrators outside the Convention Hall?" I asked.

"That's our ace in the hole. If the people outside will demonstrate, we might be able to hold everyone's interest. One of the reasons we keep warning the demonstrators not to ruin convention is that we feel it's the only way to get them to come to

"I notice that both Clark Mac-Gregor and Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican national chairman, have asked McGovern to keep his people away from your convention."

Staunchfield chuckled. "You have to admit that wasn't a bad ploy. If anyone shows up to demonstrate, we can blame it on McGovern."

"It's good thinking," I admitted, "particularly since most of the people who would bother to demonstrate are also against McGovern."

"But the TV andiences won't know that, will they?" Staunchfield asked.

"Suppose no demonstrators and agitators show up for the Republican convention? Won't that put you people in a bind?"

"There will be demonstrators there." Staunchfield assured me, "if we have to bring them in ourselves. We've asked all our delegates who are driving to Miami to pick up any hitchhiker who looks as if he's coming down to cause trouble. We're even talking about chartering buses from Cambridge, Berkeley and Georgetown to make it easier for the kids to come. We'll promise them room, board and s chance to be on prime-time television. It's an offer they can't possibly refuse."

"I hope for your sake they show up," I said to Staunchfield. "But kids are funny these days. If they know you need them to make your convention, they might stay away. Don't you have any other plans in case the demonstrations don't take place?'

... "Nothing that the networks would be interested in," Staunchfield said.

"Had you thought about dumping Agnew during the convention, just to get a TV audience?

We talked about it," Staunchfield replied. "But the President wouldn't give us the green light. He promised to announce his vice-presidential candidate before the convention, which you'll have to admit is pretty lousy show business."

"Well, if all is lost, you still have Billy Graham," I said.
"And if that fails," Staunchfield said, "Bob Hope has offered to tape his Christmas show in front of the troops guarding the Re-publican Convention Hall."

A Tribute to Italians of Charcoal Era

By Charles Hillinger ELY, Nev.—The state of Nevada has established a park in tribute to thousands of Italian workmen who lived near Ely in the last century and kept the smelters burning with their charcoal Ward Charcoal Oven State Park is 80 acres of sagebrush surrounding six 100-year-old kilns, lined up at the end of an 11-mile seldom-used dirt road. The Italian workmen, who immigrated to Nevada from the mid-1860s to the mid-1880s, chopped wood in nearby forests and made charcoal in the kilns to keep the smelters and mills of gold and silver mining camps supplied.

Three years ago the state bought the land and the beehive kilns near Ely from the C. B. Ranch Co. The kilns are the best remaining examples of the old ovens.

They once stood in the mining town of Ward, which dur-ing the 1870s was a boom town with two newspapers, two breweries, scores of homes, saloons, stores and sporting houses, Only the kilns are left.

Six charcoal kilns are the nucleus of Ward Charcoal Ovens State Park.

Charcoal eventually led to a strike and a brief "war." In 1879 mine owners in Eureka, some 60 miles away from Ely, refused to pay more than 27 1/2 cepts a bushel for charcoal (they had been paying 30 cents). The local charcoal makers struck. On Aug. 11, they took over the town

The second brigade of the state militia was sent to Eureks. In the meantime, on Aug. 18, guntire had broken out reks. between 100 carbonari and a sheriff's posse. Five of the charcoal burners were killed, several wounded and many jailed. None of the posse was hurt. There was no more bloodshed. The charcoal war of 1879 was

It was only a matter of time, however, before the timber near the mining camps was destroyed by the woodchoppers. The smelters were gradually converted to coke. The Italians moved on to other parts of America. But now there is a park dedicated to their memory. · C Los Angeles Times

A Plan to Restore the Ruins of Carthage

TUNIS, July 24 (Reuters).—The ruins of Carthage, once the greatest rival of imperial Rome, are to be restored to something of their former grandeur.

For centuries its monuments have mouldered. They are difficult to recognize among the scattered stones and dried up plots where Tunisian peasants scratch a living amid the relics of the city of Hannibal. Now a worldwide campaign has been launched, under the suspices of the United Nations Educational. Scientific and Cultural Organization, to restore the monuments as much as possible and to undertake a complete archaeological study of the site. Announcing the campaign, Rene Maheu, director general of UNESCO, said: "What is at stake today is the preservation of the global patrimony of mankind in its twin aspects of culture and environment.
